Product Spotlight: Peanuts

Peanuts aren't nuts at all: they're legumes, like peas and beans, and their pods ripen underground. In Indonesia, peanut sauce is the heart of gado gado, a name often translated as "mix mix"!

Balinese Gado Gado

with Eggs

Jammy eggs, tender baby potatoes and green beans with crisp red cabbage, carrot and fresh mint, drizzled with a creamy gado gado peanut sauce and finished with peanuts, sesame and a squeeze of lime.

35 minutes | Vegetarian | 4/6 servings

Make extra!

Add some fresh bean shoots, cucumber or capsicum to the bowl. Combine the gado gado sauce with some coconut milk to make extra dressing!

1. COOK THE POTATOES

Halve (or quarter) potatoes and add to a saucepan. Cover with plenty of water. Bring to a boil and simmer for 12 minutes (see step 3).

2. COOK THE EGGS

Meanwhile, bring a medium saucepan of water to the boil. Add eggs and cook for 6-8 minutes (see notes). Cool under running cold water. Peel and halve.

6P – use eggs to taste.

3. ADD THE BEANS

Trim and cut beans into thirds. Add to simmering potatoes (after 12 minutes) and cook for 2-3 minutes until tender. Drain and rinse.

4. PREPARE THE COMPONENTS

Finely shred cabbage. Julienne or grate carrots. Pick mint leaves. Set aside with peanut and sesame mix.

5. PREPARE THE SAUCE

Combine gado gado sauce with 1/2 lime zest and juice (wedge remaining) and 2-3 tbsp water. Season with salt and pepper.

6P – combine gado gado sauce from both tins with 1 lime zest and juice and 1/2 cup water.

6. FINISH AND SERVE

Arrange potatoes, beans, cabbage, carrot, mint and eggs on a serving plate. Spoon over gado gado sauce (use to taste). Garnish with peanut and sesame mix and serve with lime wedges.
